Question: Suggestions for improvement
more time should be given to judges for sessions

Submitted: 26 Sep 2026, 12:34 PM

Question: Suggestions for improvement
It was although a good initiative but the courses like stress management should be revisited as most of us are getting such lectures since 2010 and as factors include controlling authories hence a session be conducted to get them realize to control the factors causing circumstantial stress. Otherwise it was a good exercise and was useful and participatory. Regards

Submitted: 26 Sep 2026, 12:32 PM

Question: Suggestions for improvement
Each topic should be given much time. Especially the digitisation of the court work as the judges need more clearance on the subject.

Submitted: 26 Sep 2026, 12:32 PM

Question: Suggestions for improvement
All the topics covered were well connected, relevant to our job responsibilities, and conducive to our professional and personal well-being. The inclusion of resource persons from different departments and diverse professional backgrounds also contributed significantly to interactive and meaningful learning.

However, it was observed that some resource persons from outside the judiciary did not sufficiently tailor their lectures to the specific needs, responsibilities, and practical requirements of judicial officers. It would, therefore, be desirable to make such customization an essential component of their lectures.

Furthermore, resource persons should be required to complete their sessions within the allotted time and remain focused on the assigned topic. In some sessions, considerable time was spent initially explaining what would be covered and subsequently what would not be covered. Such time could have been utilized more effectively by proceeding directly to the substantive aspects of the topic.

The resource persons may also take into account that judicial trainees already possess a reasonable understanding of basic concepts and terminology. Accordingly, excessive time need not be devoted to explaining elementary definitions or concepts that are generally well understood. Greater emphasis should instead be placed on practical application, contemporary issues, judicial perspectives, and matters directly relevant to the day-to-day responsibilities of judicial officers.
